

Traditional Stories from the Cherokee Nation

The Legend of the Rose

PART 1 OF 1

The Cherokee were driven from their homelands in North Carolina and Georgia over 100 years ago when gold was discovered in their lands. The journey known as the “Trail of Tears”. It was a terrible time for the people - many died from the hardships and the women wept. The old men knew the women must be strong to help the children survive so they called upon the Great One to help their people and to give the mothers strength.

The Great One caused a plant to spring up everywhere a Mother’s tears had fallen upon the ground on the journey. He told the old men that the plant would grow quickly, then fall back to the ground and another stem would grow. The plant would have white blossoms, a beautiful rose with five petals and gold in the center for the greed of the white man for the gold on their land. The leaves would have seven green leaflets, one for each Cherokee clan. The plant would be strong and grow quickly throughout the land all along the Trail of Tears. The stickers on the stem would protect it from those who might try to move it, as it spread to reclaim some of the lost Cherokee homeland.

The next morning, the women saw the beautiful white blossoms far back on the trail. When they heard what the Great One had said they felt their strength returning and knew they would survive and the children would grow and the People would flourish in the new Cherokee Nation. THE END

Arkansas Education Standards: Oral & Visual Communications: Speaking, Listening & Media Literacy; Writing 4-7; Reading 8-11

Reporter’s Notebook:

Use an Arkansas map to follow the Trail of Tears through the state. Look through the newspaper to find stories of strife, hardship and strength of character. Compare and contrast the stories to this traditional story.

Serialized Traditional Stories Courtesy of Cherokee Nation and the Arkansas Press Association. Visit www.cherokee.org to learn more about the culture and heritage of the Cherokee Nation. Visit <http://www.arkansaspress.org/niemain.html> for more information.

